3,000 STRIKING MINERS STORM CITY OF CLAIRTON; MOB WORKERS AND RIP OFF CLOTHING; ATTEMPT TO UPSET CAR

Make Early Morning March in Attempt to Draw Out 6,000 Men in Steel Plant to Bolster 90,000 Already on Strike — Officers and Guards Stand By, Helpless

(By International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29.—Three thousand striking miners—a menacing, shouting, challenging mob—stormed into nearby Clairton today and practically "occupied" the city, center of the by-products plant of the Carnegie Steel Company.

Cheering and swearing, they surged against, and then stormed the gates of the plant. They ripped the clothing from some of the office workers, grabbed and hurled away the dinner pails of some of the mill workers and attempted to upset an automobile containing several workmen. Up and down a dozen blocks of the city's main thoroughfare, the invaders staged parades—parades which broke up and formed sporadically. They shouted their demands for recognition at workers enroute to the mill. They cried out warnings they were "out to stay until Fricke signed the coal code."

It was from the Fayette coal field, controlled by the H. C. Fricke Coke Company which has not yet signed the code, that the invaders came. In trucks and automobiles they raced into town from the coal fields of the southwestern Pennsylvania region. Early this morning they formed lines at Waltersburg near Uniontown and then began the march to Clairton in an attempt to draw out 6,000 men in the steel plant, to bolster the 10,000 steel workers and 80,000 miners already on strike.

More than 100 law officers, county horsemen, deputies, company guards and Clairton police stood by helpless as the invaders stalked into the city. Little resistance was offered lest a fatal spark be set to the powder keg of discontent.

Yom Kippur, The Day Of Atonement, Starts Tonight

Twilight tonight will mark the beginning of the most sacred day in the Jewish calendar, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. In Jewish life this Holy Day is also known as the "Sabbath of Sabbaths" and the "Great White Fast." Unlike the observance of any other Jewish holiday, the Day of Atonement is marked by the unique feature of fasting which begins with the chanting of the Kol Nidre melody and ends with sunset of the following day.

Like all other Jewish holidays, however, Yom Kippur has undergone a change both in its meaning and manner of observance. In the days of the Temple when the Jews dwelt in Palestine as tillers of the soil, the Day of Atonement was chiefly characterized by sacrificial rites, as specified in Leviticus XVI. Both priests and people abstained from food and drink, uttered confessions of their sins, and invoked the God of Mercy for forgiveness. The most stirring moment of the day came when, all alone, the High Priest entered the Holy of Holies and there uttered a short prayer.

But later, when the Jews were exiled from Palestine and the Temple ceased to be the central institution in Israel, the Day of Atonement assumed a new aspect. Sacrifices were no more; in their stead prayer and meditation were substituted.

Today, the masses of Jewry still fast on Yom Kippur and still observe it with great solemnity and awe-inspiring prayers. But today the keynote is to raise the character of man to a higher state of humanity. The prayers strive to convey the thought that the Day of Atonement is a day of self-examination and self-criticism—a day upon which man is to scrutinize his activities of the past year, judge them, weigh them, and henceforth resolve to turn from that which his best conscience considers evil and to follow that which his higher self regards as good.

TO APPEAL DECISION

Reading, Sept. 29.—Operators of 36 hosiery mills in the Reading district today announced they will appeal from a decision of the National Labor Board making written agreements with unions a compulsory feature of the recently settled strike of 10,000 workers.

Hugo Hemmerich, general superintendent of the Berkshire Knitting Mills, one of the largest in the country, acted as spokesman for the operators. He said the manufacturers were opposed to accepting the order of the National Labor Board because it was not rendered in the spirit of the agreement which ended the strike.

BUCKS COUNTY TO SEND 45 MORE MEN TO C. C. C. CAMPS

Present Men in Camps Are Permitted To Re-enroll

BUT MUST BE CITIZENS

Age Limit is Between 18 and 25—Discharged Men Not Eligible

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 29.—The Bucks County Emergency Relief Board is preparing to send 40 more unmarried young men with dependents to the Emergency Conservation Camps by October 2.

Applicants, to be eligible, must be unmarried men, with dependents, between the ages of 18 and 25 years, who are citizens of the United States and are willing to allot to their dependents a substantial portion of the $30 minimum monthly cash allowance.

Every present member of the Civilian Conservation Corps is entitled to re-enrollment if he so desires, it was explained this week.

The full strength of the corps is to be restored and maintained for another six months period. Consequently those who do not re-enroll must be replaced.

Men who have been discharged from the corps will not be eligible to enroll.

The board at its meeting agreed to certify its list of jobless men on the relief to the Federal Employment Bureau at Doylestown.

Any young men, members of families receiving relief in this section, may make application for reforestation camps by applying at the municipal building tomorrow at 10 a. m.

FORM SAFETY PATROLS AT SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Ninety-Two Boys Formed Into Eight Patrols Here

TO GET BELTS, BADGES

New Safety Patrols have been organized in all of the public school and parochial school buildings in Bristol and they are now functioning.

Edward Curran, Safety Director of the Keystone Automobile Club, attended the organization meeting along with Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee, who organized the various patrols and gave them instructions as to the duties they are expected to perform. Mr. Curran delivered a short talk to the patrols and told them the Keystone Club would present them with Sam Brown belts and badges, if they made good by October 15th.

There are 92 boys in the various patrols and they have all undertaken their new work with keen enthusiasm and interest. They are determined to keep the slate clean, so far as accidents in the vicinity of the school buildings are concerned.

There are 17 members on each of the patrols in the buildings at Jefferson avenue, and Wood street, St. Mark's and St. Ann's also have 17 members. The high school building has 15, Washington street, 9; Bath, 13 and Beaver street, four.

The patrols safeguard the children crossing the highways in the vicinity of the schools.

"Hill-Billies" High Spot In "The World's All Right"

"The World's All Right," which will be staged here October 5th and 6th by the Y. M. A., is a new and different type of show and not only has a funny plot but contains many other high spots of comedy. The outstanding comedy number is the "Hill-Billy" scene in which a number of prominent singers and actors play the part of old-time hill-billies and sing "My Blue Ridge Mountain Home" and "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree."

Evans Vandergrift as the old-time fiddler; Frank Della, as the guitar player, and John Buss and band, as the harmonica players, play an old-fashioned square dance, while Roy Fry and William Taylor as Maud and Susan, the hill-billy maids, and Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., and William Hibbs, as Jess and Grandpa, hill-billy men, give an old-time square dance.

The high spot of comedy in this scene is the pantomiming of an old-time melodrama, "Frankie and Johnnie," Melvin Johnson as Hiram Zilch sings the song, "Frankie and Johnnie," Frances Wear as Johnnie, the city shiek; William Griffith, as Frankie, his sweetheart; Mike Durham, as Smokey Joe, and Russell Arison, as Nellie Blys, the vamp, act out the melodrama as the words of the song are sung. Melvin C. Johnson and Charles Rathke have the roles of the two hill-billies, Hiram and Si in this number, and their antics are clever and the lines fast-moving and funny.

The characters in the pantomime are among the best actors in the town, consequently that makes this scene a screamingly funny spot.

WOMAN FIRES AT INTRUDER

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—Two bystanders were recovering in a hospital today from bullet wounds, and a 12-year old girl was suffering from hysteria as the result of the attempt of Mrs. Philomena Temperio, 46, to rebuke a man she said was "insulting" young girls. The victims were Onelo Raimo, 38, wounded in the back, and Leon Lauretto, 17, shot in the left ankle. Lillian Zicatti, 12, was in a hysterical condition. Mrs. Temperio was arrested on charges of aggravated assault and battery. She said she struck John Foss with a broom for his remarks to girls and fired the shots when he attempted to enter her home.

HI-JACK TRUCK IN TRENTON; BIND AND GAG DRIVER, THROWING HIM OUT ON ROAD NEAR HERE

Four-Ton Truck and Contents Are Stolen by Four Men Early Today — Highways Being Searched for the Missing Vehicle — Driver Brought Here

Four men early today hi-jacked a four-ton truck loaded with groceries, bound and gagged the driver and dumped him out after driving around in their car for several hours.

The driver, Peter Graziano, 36, 106 South Packard Street, Hammonton, N. J., who claims he is also the owner of the truck, was found along the highway one and a half miles west of Morrisville, between the canal bridge and the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge.

Graziano was found by Reuben Stern, 3820 Brown street, and David Weintraub, 1933 North 32nd street, Philadelphia, who brought him to the Municipal Building, here, where Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo was given a report of the affair.

$15,000 Barn Blaze Due To Lightning at Wycombe

FOREST GROVE, Sept. 29.—Lightning yesterday struck a large barn on the S. K. Mulford, Jr., farm, at Dark Hollow, several miles from Wycombe, causing a loss of approximately $15,000 that is partly covered by insurance.

This is the third time in thirty years that a barn on this farm has been struck by lightning and burned down.

The farmer, Leonard Slack, was awakened shortly after midnight by a heavy crash. By the time he got to a bed room window the entire barn roof was in flames where the bolt had struck. He rushed out and rescued two horses, a mule, three cows and three hogs, but was unable to reach four hogs that burned to death.

The entire structure and contents were destroyed, including 70 tons of hay, 30 tons of baled straw, 700 bushels of grain and all the farm machinery.

Slack was unable to notify fire companies himself because the lightning put the wires out of commission, but two neighbors, Worthington and Charles Evoy, summoned fire companies from Wycombe, Hatboro and Ivyland. By the time they arrived the barn had been destroyed. They saved a frame garage and a corn crib about 100 feet from the barn. The dwelling house was not threatened.

The barn was equipped with lightning rods and was built about 12 years ago when the farm was owned and occupied by Reuben Lapp.

EXCHANGEITES LISTEN TO TRAVELOGUE TALK

"A Trip to Spain" Told To Group By Miss Marian Smith

TELLS OF BULL FIGHT

At the conclusion of the travelogue talk entitled "A Trip to Spain," which was given to the members of the Bristol Exchange Club last evening by Miss Marian Smith, it was conceded by all present to have been one of the most interesting and educational talks the club has ever had the pleasure of hearing.

Miss Smith began her discourse by describing her arrival at Gibraltar. After making a tour of the town she said she was convinced it was one of the dirtiest she had ever been in. Cadiz was not much better but Seville was a combination of the ancient and modern. Many of the streets in these towns were so narrow that two wagons could not pass, and one would have to back up in a doorway to allow the other to proceed.

Miss Smith stated that in many of these old towns like Cordova, Seville and Granada, there still remains a type of the Arabic architecture and art. She elaborated upon her visit to some of the Catholic cathedrals.

The speaker said it was surprising how few women were seen upon the streets, or riding on the trains. It seemed to be the custom for the women of the upper classes to remain at home, while the working women were the only ones seen upon the streets.

"Madrid is a modern city and in consequence," Miss Smith said, she found it less interesting than the older and more ancient cities. Water was scarce and very little ice was used. The hotels were very good and practically all of them served French menus. Food was served in abundance but there was no distinction between lunch and dinner. Dinner was served at 9:30 p. m. and moving picture houses open at 10:45 p. m.

The most interesting part of Miss Smith's talk was her description of a bull fight which she attended. She described the amphitheatre or "Plaza de Toros" where the fights were held and said she was fortunate in obtaining a seat near the President's box.

The principal performers are the picadores, chulos and espada. The picadores are mounted. The chulos are on foot and wear bright pink colored cloaks. The espada are also on foot.

The story told by Graziano to Detective Russo was to the effect that he was hauling a load of miscellaneous groceries from New York to Philadelphia. "I stopped at a lunch wagon on Hanover street in Trenton, N. J., to eat. When I came out to get into my truck I found a man lying on the seat of the cab. He poked a gun into my ribs and told me to drive on."

Continuing his narrative, Graziano described how trembling with fear he continued to drive his heavily-loaded vehicle from Trenton over the Delaware River free bridge, through Morrisville and then at the direction of the hi-jacker who sat calmly beside him with the pistol aimed at Graziano, turned off the Lincoln Highway at Morrisville and proceeded down the Bristol Pike.

"When a short distance below Morrisville three men drove a sedan directly head-on for the truck. Graziano stopped at the direction of his hi-jacker companion. Graziano was ordered from the truck and into the sedan. One of the four then mounted the truck and drove off, while Graziano and his three captors started in the opposite direction. Graziano told Detective Russo he was thrown into the back of the car. His hands and legs tied with rope and a handkerchief-gag forced into his mouth. He was then covered with a blanket. The car was driven over a circuitous route for a time and then finally Graziano was tossed out of the car.

Graziano was found at five o'clock this morning along the Bristol Pike still with hands and feet tied and the gag in his mouth.

Graziano operated the truck for the Salvo Motor Express, 1344 N. 50th street, Philadelphia. He operated it under a New Jersey license, I-X31447.

In the inventory of the contents of the truck the following are given:

Twenty-six cases of Italian cheese, three barrels of olives, 30 bags of beans, 100 cases of tomatoes and paste, two bags of rice, and a quantity of snails.

After questioning, Graziano was permitted to leave here and went to his home in Philadelphia.

All-Day Meeting of Bucks Republican Women Planned

The annual all-day meeting of Bucks County Council of Republican Women will be held at "The Neshaminy Church of Warwick," Hartsville, Thursday, October 5th.

The morning session, called for 10:30 o'clock, will commence with business, followed by discussion of proposed amendments by Mrs. Maud R. Stuckert, Newtown, legislative chairman of the council; history and progress of Mothers' Assistance in Bucks County, Mrs. William C. Ryan, Doylestown.

The president, Mrs. John W. Cooper, Pineville, will extend a welcome to the members and guests at 2:15 for the afternoon meeting.

One of the afternoon speakers will be district attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, of Doylestown. Selections by a chorus will be followed by an address by Mrs. Mary T. Dennon, of Latrobe. Mrs. Dennon is a widely-known and inspiring speaker, and the council is congratulating itself on securing her for this program.

The historic meeting place, surrounded by trees, with the Neshaminy Creek murmuring by will make a delightful spot for the meeting, and combined with the fine program will make an eventful trip.

For those traveling south on the Eastern Highway it is suggested that they turn left at Warrington store; those traveling toward Philadelphia on the Old York Road, turn right at Hartsville store, and proceed one-half mile.

Miss Eleanor D. Worthington and Miss Anna Darrah, Hartsville, are hostesses of the meeting.

Box luncheon will be partaken of at noon, and coffee will be served.

ROAST BEEF SUPPER

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 29.—St. Charles parish will conduct its annual roast beef supper tomorrow evening at St. Charles Auditorium, here. Suppers may be procured from five to eight o'clock.

WAR DEBTS AGAIN

Little has been heard in the United States recently of war debts, a question which not many months ago was the chief subject of discussion on both sides of the Atlantic.

The administration in Washington apparently has been too busy getting its new deal into operation to pay much attention to this subject, and Europe seems satisfied to let the matter drift. The question, nevertheless, is one that will not solve itself. Eventually a showdown will have to come.

A reminder of this is seen in a dispatch from Washington that America's debtors had permitted their last opportunity for a legal postponement of debt payments totaling more than $50,000,000, due December 15, to pass without any action being taken. Under the funding agreement, a nation is required to give 90 days' notice of an intention to defer payment of an installment.

None had done this at the expiration of the time limit September 16. This might indicate that they planned to make the December 15 payments. The failure, however, was interpreted otherwise in Washington. Officials there were represented as believing that a situation similar to that of last June 15 would develop, with some of the debtor nations making token payments and others nothing.

President Roosevelt in accepting the token payments last June made it clear that the United States did so on the understanding that the payments constituted an acknowledgment on the part of the debtors of the validity of this country's claims against them. He informed them at the same time the United States would be glad to grant their request for conferences to re-examine their funding agreements. No such promise was made the seven defaulters, Washington simply acknowledging their notes saying they could make no payments.

The grand total, in principal and interest due December 15, is $309,070,874. Of this amount, $100,620,765 is due from Great Britain. France's share is $82,200,925, while Italy is next with $14,079,345.

There is no prospect that the full amounts will be paid at the next payment date. An increase in the list of defaulters is more likely. The situation, however, may bring some development looking toward a permanent settlement of the entire debts question.

This would be a highly desirable move. Permitting the matter to drift indefinitely can only weaken the prospects of an eventual settlement along the lines of fairness and justice. It is time for all uncertainty to be removed.

SYNOPSIS

"Big Jeff" Randolph, now in his second year on the Thorndyke variety and one of the nation's greatest football stars, has had a brilliant grid career ever since his high school days in Little Athens, a mid-west factory town, where Mom and Pop and the rest of the family are now listening over the radio to the game between their boy's great eastern university and Indiana State. "Big Jeff" is just Tommy back home which he visits on vacations and starts with his social-sartrial splendor. He's gone somewhat high-bat with the seal of Thorndyke upon him and has drifted away from Dorothy Whitney, daughter of the richest man in Athens—the owner of the glass-works in which his Pop labors. . . . Thorndyke is leading, 7-0, thanks to a touchdown pass by "Big Jeff", as the game goes into its latter half with Charlie Whitney, Athens tycoon; his daughter, Dorothy; and her escort, Jerry Randall, in the huge throng packing the Stadium.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

The late afternoon chill was upon the crowd in the Stadium. Jerry Randall offered his task to Dorothy; she declined, but Charlie Whitney accepted and then Jerry had his drink. He smiled at the girl. "You weren't amaze me. Look at Elaine Winthrop down there."

Dorothy nodded. She had been noting the young woman in the short leopard jacket, for reasons different than Jerry's.

"That little jockey—and her legs out like a couple of orphans. Freddy's sitting there wrapped up in a bearskin coat and pickled in gin but she hasn't had a drink yet."

"Perhaps she doesn't like it," Dorothy said.

"Don't fool yourself. She's a deep well, that lady, and there's nothing she doesn't like."

"Who is she?"

"Plenty. Back Bay, Park Avenue, plays around with art—the kind of social register which tinlins Broadway columns."

Jerry wasn't usually so informative but he had had many drinks to help him keep warm. Elaine Winthrop had come through for Dorothy's estimate. Those legs Jerry had noticed were twin bits of shapely shirri bamboo; every touch of her revealed the artist.

"Come on, Jeff, do something," Jerry complained.

A note in his voice caught Dorothy's attention. It hadn't been an inspiring game; after the first sudden touchdown the Indiana team had changed its defensive tactics, switched them smartly according to Charlie Whitney—and Dorothy knew her father had a good knowledge of football. He answered now:

"It's a tough game, Jerry. Those boys from home are getting better as they go—and I imagine they're giving Tom a good rough afternoon unless I'm mistaken."

"A hero is supposed to be heroic," Jerry maintained, "that's what he's here for."

His voice and his manner were annoying. Dorothy hadn't been greatly excited about the game. Normally she would have wanted Indiana to win but Thorndyke was Jerry's school, and because Tommy played there it had become Charlie Whitney's chief passion of the football season. Dorothy had had no keen interest either way.

"Jerry—that's unfair," Dorothy protested.

He turned to her, a slow smile on his face; his eyes were a twinkling. "Come on, Dot—what about ourselves?"

Charlie Whitney was warning Dorothy that she did not answer. She took a quick turn.

Indiana had been stubborn, defensively, but inept on the offense. Now the Thorndyke line seemed to sag suddenly, to grow limp. Red jerseys began to pour through—and behind them came Carlton, the Hoosier fullback, bowling his way, head to his knees and the ball buried somewhere within the cavern of his short arms and belly.

They crossed midfield—a short pass made first down on the Thorndyke 37-yard line.

"Well!" Charlie Whitney said. The stands were alive to the situation, sensing one of those sudden crackups of good teams. Indiana shouted for its men to come on for a tie and a moral victory. Thorndyke implored: "Hold that line! Hold that line! Take it away! Take it away! Stop Carlton! Stop Carlton!"

Cold shadows were upon the field but the men of Indiana hoisted and charged into position with the fire of reprieve—the quick, buoyant spring of unexpected release. They had a fighting chance and were taking it. They encouraged each other. Carlton was surrounded by his happy teammates after each charge; and each time, after surrendering the ball to the referee, he jumped back to his position, his fist in the air, beating the air with staccato jerks.

"He's marvellous," Dorothy whispered.

Thorndyke dug in desperately each time the crimson wave hurled it back. Fresh men ran out from the Pilgrim bench, fresh men with clean uniforms, dancing step, fire and determination. They were met by Tom Randolph after they reported to the referee; he pushed them into position; pounded their backs; shouted at them.

Tom was backing up the line, roving from side to side, trying to diagnose the plays; he was in every play but the crimson march went on.

"What's the matter with him?" Jerry demanded. "Why don't he get in there?"

There was a touch of sharpness in Charlie Whitney's answer. "They're sending two men on Tom—riding him out of the play; they've been doing it all day; he's stopping most of them as it is—they've never gets a . . .

There was silence.

SPORTS

BRISTOL TROJANS WILL MEET FRANKFORD A. A.

CROYDON, Sept. 29.—After having limbered up in scrimmage for two successive Sunday afternoons, the Bristol Trojans will step out into real gridiron society tomorrow afternoon when they will meet the fast Frankford A. A. at the American Legion Field, Frankford, at 2:30 o'clock. This heavy football date is only a fore-runner to the fray scheduled for next Friday, October 6, when the Trojans will play Hightstown under the flood lights of Windsor Airport field in Trenton.

Playing away from home for the first time the Trojans will have a chance to show their mettle in the enclosure at Pratt Street. What happens in this game may be an indicator as to what fans may expect in the Trenton night battle.

Dom Dougherty, who is well satisfied with the showing his team made against Bustleton last Sunday afternoon fully expects to leave the Legion field on the wings of victory. Scouts, who have watched the Frankford A. A. in action have reported that the opposition, while having a line weight similar to that of the Trojans, is very speedy in the execution of plays. The team, which is made up of many Frankford Alumni and players from various colleges is well known for its celerity and trickery.

Only one of the backfield will be missing when the Trojans line up for play. Stet Crossley, star fullback, who will be unable to be present will be replaced by Dean and Mellor. Both men made a good showing on the Eddington turf last Sunday. Leighton and L. Crossley will be there to call numbers while Collins and Ludwig will be on hand to rove the pivot post. The Trojans will present a heavy line with Davis, Conn, Lewis, Johnson, Kutzer and Lake taking their usual places.

"Five yard" Bill Johnson will no doubt start against Frankford in the fullback position.

All of the Trojans will not see action on Saturday afternoon, Dougherty announced, since the team has scheduled a game with the Frankford Red Jackets at Eddington Field on Sunday afternoon. Coach Dougherty does not expect his men to play two days in a row and therefore many players will be withheld for the Sunday fray.

Many local fans have announced their intentions to travel to the Frankford Legion stadium and see their boys in action against real opposition. But all are looking forward to the game at Trenton on October 6.

At a meeting of the Trojans committees were appointed to take care of the sale of tickets for the Trenton floodlight game. The following names were announced: Bristol, Dom Dougherty and Bud Davis; Croydon, Nat Vincent and Morris Kaplan; and Newportville, Harry Mellor. Each of the Trojans players will have tickets, it was stated.

The charity card party sponsored by some members of Edgely school association, Wednesday evening, in Dick's Hall, was a very successful affair. There were 28 tables of pinocle players arranged and 100 of useful prizes. The five highest scores attained were: Herman Leinheiser, 817; Andrew Firce, 809; Albert Lodge, 801; Walter Stilwell, 797; Francis Wilson, 772. Refreshments were sold and a neat sum realized.

HULMEVILLE A. A. WILL PLAY ST. ANN'S TOMORROW

Tomorrow afternoon on the Hulmeville field, Hulmeville A. A., champions of the Lower Bucks County League, will have as its guest the St. Ann's A. A. nine, winners of the Bristol Twilight League. The tilt is the second match of a three-game series, the first going to Hulmeville last Saturday by the score of 10-2.

"Charlie" Whyno, ace right-hander of the Saints, will attempt to stop the Hulmeville club. Whyno has pitched steady ball all season and is expected to even the series for the Twilight League champs.

"Ike" Watson will do the hurling for the Lower Bucks team and will attempt to bring the series to a close by scoring a triumph. The remainder of the line-ups will be the same as last week.

Game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock.

HOME-OPENER OF B. H. S. TO BE PLAYED TOMORROW

By Oscar Corn

The proteges of Coach "Snapper" McLaughlin, versus the proteges of Coach "Bill" Dougherty, mixed together on the Bristol High gridiron, equals one swell football tourney.

For the first time in about ten months, a gigantic crowd will be assembled on the sidelines of the Cardinal and Gray stadium to witness the clash between the strong LaSalle high eleven and our home town team. What a contest! Brawn vs. Brawn.

Everybody in this town ought to see this opening game. The Bristol team in their new suits are well worth seeing in action. The new season tickets now for sale are an immense saving, and can be bought by the townspeople from any student or at the gate. This ticket should totally get rid of the "fence-hangers" which attend all Bristol High's home games.

The Cardinal and Gray squad has been working this week at smoothing their plays, and making them more foolproof and perfect. They are aware of the importance of this game and will surely give a good account of themselves on Saturday.

A big help to the Cardinal and Gray team in winning this game will be a big turn-out of townspeople and students.

FRANCIS J. CORRIGAN is working hard these days assembling players to represent the Bristol A. A. this season on the gridiron... according to "Gunner" he will have a better team on the field this year than ever before... on a par with the teams of the Holmes-Carty-Ingram-Conca era, he said. To quote Frank, "our team will have players that know their way around... lads who have had plenty of experience... and our opponents will be clubs of the highest calibre... no set-ups."

"We will have a number of newcomers on the squad who have had college football experience and are plenty big... Mackiewicz, a big Polish lad who played at Fordham on the line as tackle; Altene, a product of Albright, will be in the backfield."

"Terrell, another importation who has been life-guard at Virginia Beach all summer, will hold down a line position... Terrell weighs 190 lbs., and stands 6 ft. 1."

"Roache, who played last year for us in the backfield, will be back... Fromm, another line man, who appeared here several times and is plenty big, weighing 225 pounds, will be with us again."

"Lux, an ex-marine at guard; Crossan, a St. Joseph's boy at back, together with Wilson, Amison, Court, Fallon, Donahue, Lake, Roe, Lawler, McGinley and Mellor, I feel that we will have the best club around this neck of the woods," continued Corrigan.

"Our club will travel the first two games... we meet Norris-town for the opener and expect a great game"... when asked where the Bristol A. A. club would play in town, "Gunner" said that two sites were being considered, and didn't know which one to pick, adding that this club will have the town talking and it wouldn't make any difference where they played, the crowd would follow.

Well, here's hoping you have a successful season, Gunner!

and carry large knives or swords under their bright red cloaks. When the bull begins to tag the chulos stick "banderillas" or barbed darts about two feet long ornamented with colored paper flags, into the neck of the animal. Sometimes these darts have crackers attached to them, the explosion of which makes the bull furious.

The espada enters at the finish and completes the tragic business. When the bull catches sight of his red cloak, he generally rushes blindly at it; and then the espada, if he is well skilled, plunges his sword between the shoulder-blade and spine, up to the very hilt, and the animal drops dead at his feet. A team of mules then enter and drag out the carcass of the dead bull. Miss Smith described the whole affair as disgustingly brutal and repulsive, and she and her party left after the killing of the second bull. The speaker remarked she would not have gone, but she knew that when she reached home, her friends would all ask her if she had seen a bull fight.

Miss Smith's talk lasted for over an hour and the men were so pleased and interested that many remained after the meeting was over to ask her questions.

Master Mind of the Grid

By BURNLEY

SOMEbody once asked Pop Warner what is the greatest factor in the successful coaching of a football team, and Pop answered: "Material!" Well, he ought to know. He has been coaching some thirty-eight years. Warner has come to the East from Stanford to bring to Temple University at Philadelphia, and to the East in general, the brand of Warner football known as power football. And as Pop himself has said, it takes material.

Apparently, Temple has material—great big fellows who have the brawn it takes to play the kind of football their coach has made famous. There's every chance that they will make their school as well-known and respected as the venerable University of Pennsylvania, their home town neighbor, and any one who knows Philadelphia knows that the downtown Temple boys have just that idea in mind.

Warner gets a good break at Temple, aside from the inheritance of a wealth of good material from his predecessor. He has his predecessor's Miller is the man who guided the Owls before Warner took hold, and he remains as mentor of the ends. Heinie knows the men, and he will be of great help to Warner in getting off to a good start by using his good material in the best way.

Thirty-seven veterans make up the squad that has been training under Pop at Oak Lane and getting ready for the season's opener this Saturday against South Carolina. Reports have it that the weaknesses of the team are in ends and center. The guards are everything Pop could want and the tackle material is fine.

Pop is all enthusiasm about his new post at Temple. He likes the huskies he has to work with, and he is completely satisfied with his surroundings. He expects a "fair" season.

In addition to Miller, Pop has an able staff of assistants, all former players and coaches with him at Stanford. Charles Winterburn is in charge of the backs; Fred Swan guides the Freshmen.

This great developer of "great" eleven is off to a new start. He turned the trick at Stanford, Cornell, Carlsle, Georgia and Pitt during his career. How about Temple?
